GENERAL HUERTA IS DEFENDED

Kansas City, Oct. 27.—Defense of Provisional President Huerta's administration in Mexico, and denial that the Mexican executive had a share in the murder of former President Madero and Vice President Suarez, was made by Rev. John Howland of Guadalajara, a missionary, in an address before the annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions held in connection with the National Council of the Congregational churches here today.

He also paid strong tribute to the rule of Porfirio Diaz as worthy of the great epigram:

"He made a nation and destroyed a people."

Thirty-one years in Mexico.

Dr. Howland has lived for thirty-one years in Mexico as head of the Colegio Internacional at Guadalajara.

"The widespread idea that General Huerta seized the presidency," said he, "or that he came in through the doors of assassination is entirely incorrect. His acceptance of the provisional presidency precluded his being a candidate in the present election and his government was established and both officially and popularly accepted days before the death of President Madero."

Leave Mexico Alone.

"Huerta had nothing to gain by the death of Madero. President Madero left the treasury bankrupt and revenues were immensely reduced by the closing of most of the ports of entry, the interruption of traffic and general disturbance. The hostile attitude of American authorities against General Huerta caused the bankers who had arranged a large loan to delay the promised payments, and this has greatly impeded the pacification of the country. Mexico should be left alone. It is well able to take care of itself."

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions carries on the foreign missionary work of the Congregational denomination. It is the oldest missionary board in America, having been founded 103 years ago. Today's sessions were given over to men from the foreign fields who told of their work abroad.

SENATE FRAMING CURRENCY BILL

Bankers, Financial Experts, College Professors and Economists Have Been Heard.

MATERIAL AMENDMENTS

Glass Intimates That Vandervlip May Be in the Red Herring Business.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Today the real work of framing a currency bill will be begun by the senate committee on banking and currency. The hearings that closed Saturday opened on September 2. During that time upwards of 100 representative men have been heard and 2000 printed pages of testimony taken. Bankers from all sections of the country have been before the committee. Financial experts whose names are known throughout the entire country, college professors and economists have expounded their ideas. All sorts and kinds of views were submitted, but it was not until within the last ten days that opinions began to crystallize. The principles upon which the bill may be founded, each of them indicating material amendment of the house, are as follows:

Number of national reserve banks to be reduced from twelve to not more than five.

Public Subscription.

Instead of national banks being assessed to supply the capital stocks of these regional banks, the books are to be thrown open to public subscription.

No member of the cabinet to be a member of the federal reserve board.

Control of regional reserve banks to be under officials designated by the president or the federal reserve board; banks to have no representation.

All provisions for savings bank departments to be eliminated from the administration bill.

All profits earned above 6 per cent to go to the government to be applied on the outstanding national debt.

Redeemable Rates.

Whether the notes authorized by the bill shall be guaranteed by the government and whether or not the federal board shall have power to fix redeemable rates, according to the needs of any particular geographical division is a matter yet undetermined.

The issue is clearly drawn between the bill passed by the house and the central bank plan proposed by Frank A. Vandervlip of New York. Whether the administration bill backed by President Wilson's opposition to the Vandervlip plan will emerge triumphant or whether some middle ground will be found between the two measures now is the question agitating congress.

A majority of the senate committee admittedly favors the Vandervlip plan, but administration supporters declare that such a measure could not be passed in the house and that the committee must take the administration plan as a basis if currency legislation is not to be delayed.

Glass Issues Statement.

Chairman Glass of the house committee, who aided in framing the administration bill, issued a statement in which he said:

"I have read that it was a custom in certain fox hunts in Great Britain when the fox was hard pressed to drag a red herring across the scent to give the fox another chance. Of course, the so-called money power in this country is not fox and no one would dream of suspecting Mr. Vandervlip of being in the red herring business."

"Yet it happens to be a fact that the house currency bill is designed to correct the defects of a system under which concentrated wealth ruled the nation; and that the Vandervlip scheme was projected at the eleventh hour, with the hope of indefinite postponement of currency legislation should the scheme be given serious attention. If Mr. Vandervlip's scheme was not actually designed to delay and frustrate currency legislation, it will, if given consideration, have the inevitable effect."

Vandervlip Is Quoted.

Mr. Glass then declared that Mr. Vandervlip had written him July 24 protesting against the government control feature of the house bill and against "politically appointed boards" to control the reserve banks. He quoted Mr. Vandervlip as declaring that the only proper method of control must be through a board composed of practical bankers selected for short terms by member banks. He continued:

"In direct contravention of this position, Mr. Vandervlip and his Wall Street associates come here at the last hour, flinging consistency to the winds, proposing a politically appointed board, not one member of which is to be selected by the stockholding banks, but all by the president of the United States. Mr. Vandervlip in July objected to the long term of seven years provided by the house bill; but now, in October, he would stretch out the term to fourteen years."

"Mr. Vandervlip, in his testimony before the senate committee, differed from his bill from the house bill in several important features, among them, 'uniform, nation wide discount rate instead of regional discount rate.' Three months ago Mr. Vandervlip, in his letter, highly commended the house bill for its superiority."

Another topic, "Control of Moisture," he will discuss before the section of soils, tillage and machinery.

The services of Lon J. Haddock of the college extension division were requisitioned two weeks ago by the authorities of the big agricultural convention to help in its organization and management.

The opening session of the congress will be held tomorrow.

ESCAPED CONVICT IS STILL AT LARGE

Salt Lake, Oct. 27.—Although deputy sheriffs, state prison guards and town marshals spent all day yesterday searching between Salt Lake and Ogden for Jack Higgins, the convict who escaped early yesterday morning from the convict road camp near St. Joseph, he had not been found at a house last night. Warden Arthur Pratt and an automobile loaded with guards were on the scene half an hour after the escape was reported at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and every officer was notified to be on the lookout. A reward of $50 has been offered for the capture of Higgins.

Higgins, who is 44 years of age and a two-year convict whose sentence would have expired next April, escaped from the camp while one of the two guards had his attention distracted. The camp is encircled by a 125-foot square of wire, with lights running diagonally across the square.

C. E. Murphy was guarding the northeast corner and A. W. Nance the southwest corner. At 2 o'clock, when Murphy stepped inside his guard tent to replenish the coals on the fire, Higgins, who had evidently been waiting for the chance, made a break for liberty across the lighted guard.

Nance, but so sudden had been the action that there was no time to open fire upon him.

The escape was immediately reported to Guard E. Janney, in charge of the camp. He, in turn, notified the state prison and the search was begun. Deputy Warden Andrew Ure of the prison, and Deputy Sheriff Coulson Smith of this county went to Ogden yesterday, where they joined with the Weber county sheriff's force in the search.

Higgins, if found, will be prosecuted and he will lose his credits. While the offense is not as serious as breaking from prison, Higgins, if caught, will have to serve a longer time than if he had not escaped. He was convicted of burglary in Emery county and committed to state prison on February 14, 1913. This was his second term as he was sentenced from Weber county for burglary in 1909.

He is described as stocky of build, dark complexioned, five feet and a half inches in height, having dark brown eyes and hair flecked with gray. His face and body are covered with fever scars.

Albert J. Felder is found dead in bed. Salt Lake, Oct. 27.—Albert J. Felder, machinist, who has been employed for several weeks putting in an ice plant at the L. D. S. hospital, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in his room at the Montana rooming house, 73 South State street.

Felder registered at the rooming house Friday night, giving his address as New Mexico. Saturday he remained in bed and Mr. Gardner, who took charge of the place Saturday visited the room and asked if he wanted to call a doctor. Felder told him that a physician was unnecessary, as he was not very sick. Although it is supposed that death resulted from natural causes an investigation will be made today by Harry S. Harper, acting coroner.

Widows' Pension Fund is Nearly Exhausted. Only a small portion of the $10,000 appropriated for 1913 for Salt Lake county under the provisions of the new legislation for public support of dependent mothers remains. County authorities and the officials of the juvenile court are considering that small remainder go as far as possible during the winter months.

passed by the last legislature the county can have "not more than $10,000" for this purpose, and each dependent widow may be allowed not more than $10 per month. Under section 5 of this law, "Should the fund be sufficient to permit an allowance to only a part of the persons coming within the provisions of this law the county commissioners or juvenile court shall select those cases in most urgent need of such allowance."

Although no formal discussions have as yet been made on the subject, it is thought that, with winter coming on, the most unfortunate of the cases only will receive relief, so the fund can go further than might be the case otherwise.

BOISE HIGH SCHOOL MAKES POOR SHOWING

The showing of the Boise team in its games with the Emmett All-Stars and the Nampa high school football eleven has put the team's supporters on the anxious seat. Boise has won both games, but did not play the football that was expected.

Only two of last year's men are on the team. They are Captain Brown and Left End Horrie. Brown's position is quarterback. These two men were the stars of this year's games.

Horrie is the best and in Idaho. He is a bear on the forward pass and pull them down from the clouds. Captain Vernon Brown is accurate on throwing these passes. Horrie is also the team's punter.

The team's most important games will be with the Lincoln high school of Portland and Salt Lake on November 15 and the Pottland school on Turkey day. A game will be played with the Weiser high school on November 8.
